Dear Staff and Faculty,

We write to call your attention to important and timely communications that were sent this week from Vice President for Student Development Steve Bisese and President Crutcher to students and their families. The letters highlight the Healthy Web Compact and the important behavioral and safety expectations that we have for students as they return to campus in the coming days. We invite you to read the letters here.

You should also know that we are actively utilizing our social media channels and websites to deliver creative and recurring messages to students about the campus safety measures and protocols we are instituting and will expect them to practice as we work together to ensure the health and well-being of our community this semester and beyond.

Thank you for sharing with students and colleagues alike a commitment to the principles of the Healthy Web Compact.

Sincerely,

David Hale
